SPEYSIDE

This area of Scotland contains the lion's share of Scotch whisky distilleries and is situated between the cities of Inverness and Aberdeen. The character of these malts is generally noted for complexity, elegance and a refined smokiness.

The production on Bourbon is concentrated in, but not restricted to, the Kentucky regions. Rye based Bourbons tend to have lively, complex, and slightly spicy characters: whereas wheat based Bourbons tend to be much creamier and sweeter on the palate.
